THE SELFPORTRAIT SERIES

Constantly experimenting with new ways to work with different materials I began in 2011 cutting pictures out of magazines, newspapers and any paper products I could find. Inspired by a class I took at the Birmingham Bloomfield Art Center in Michigan / USA I started with collages. Collages are now a new component of my artwork. Some contain paper, some contain fabric and all collages emphasize strong color.

The SELFPORTRAIT SERIES has been created for an upcoming show in the GM Design Center in summer 2011. This artwork captures my experiences being a visitor in Metro Detroit , my ideas and new thinking processes initiated through cultural differences.

Future Projects

Being located in Michigan now, I am very excited to learn more about cultural habits and behaviour. I am very impressed by the way, how the native landscape is treated - allowing hundreds of old trees in suburban areas to provide cooling shade. There is a lot of deer and other wild animals living near the houses and in the gardens. In early spring I even found the footprints of a Coyote in our Garden.

Currently I am creating a WOOD (canvas) and a MUSHROOM (paper mache) series, capturing new impressions. The paper maché deer on the right will be finished soon. It is quite humid in Detroit and it takes a while until my paper mache sculptures are dried and the next layer can be applied.
